

No ЛД-21
ЛД-22

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH CARE ORGANIZATION
WITH PSYCHOLOGY AND PEDAGOGY FACULTY OF MEDICINE

METHODICAL RECOMMENDATIONS FOR WRITING ESSAYS

"PSYCHOLOGY AND PEDAGOGY"

of the main professional educational program of higher education - the program of specialization in the specialty 31.05.01 General Medicine, approved on 30.03.2022.

Methodical recommendations for the implementation of abstracts

The student's work on the essay begins with the choice of topic (the list of topics is attached). You can also offer your topic, coordinating it with the teacher. The main thing is that it affects your interests and contributes to your development and improvement. The work will become much more interesting if you clarify, specify the topic.

This can be done as follows:

- a) limiting the time and spatial scope of the topic;
- b) selecting a certain aspect from the topic;
- c) highlighting the problem from the point of view of any author.

If you have a mature idea for the work, try to divide this whole into its constituent elements and present a logical sequence. Drawing up a preliminary plan brings order to the work. After that, you can start working with literary sources. Familiarize yourself with the literature recommended in the program of the cultural studies course, textbooks. When working on compiling a list, write out all the literature that fits the topic. After that, proceed to its preliminary study, choosing the most important thing. As soon as the preliminary work is completed, you can start writing an essay.

Structure of work:

1. title page (the name of the university, department, the name of the topic, the name and number of the student's group, the year and city of creation of the work are indicated)
2. plan or content with page reference.
3. introduction (statement of the problem, relevance of the topic, purpose and objectives of the work, review of sources and literature) - the volume of 1-2 pages.
4. the main part (contains from two to four chapters, which can be divided into paragraphs, and each chapter necessarily ends with a conclusion) - a volume of 10 - 15 pages.
5. conclusion (summarizes the conclusions in the chapters, corresponds to the goal set in the introduction) - the volume of up to 1 page.
6. List of sources and references used.

In the introduction, you need to briefly and reasonably explain why this particular topic was chosen, to justify its relevance. The main part of the abstract should not be a complete rewriting of someone else's text. You creatively process texts, enrich sources with your own thoughts, associations, judgments, try to develop the ideas of authors or act as their opponent. The quoted text should be put in quotation marks and make a footnote to the author's work. In conclusion, the author of the abstract makes the main conclusions for each section and the entire study.

At the end, a list of references is attached.